The Influence of Student Characteristics and Interpersonal Teacher Behaviour in the Classroom on Student's Wellbeing
Karen Van Petegem, Antonia Aelterman, Hilde Van Keer, Yves Rosseel
Social Indicators Research, Vol. 85, No. 2 (Jan., 2008), pp. 275-289

Abstract Student wellbeing can be considered a major output indicator of quality of education. A positive classroom climate can contribute to a higher sense of wellbeing. Interpersonal relationships between teachers and students are an important aspect of the classroom climate. This study investigated how student wellbeing was predicted by student...
